The Ohio State University Cultivar Trials

The OSU Cultivar Trial is comprised of 155 cultivars in total, with the objective to observe the performance of new and recently introduced annual and perennial cultivars under the environmental conditions of central Ohio.

Chadwick Arboretum & Learning Gardens at The Ohio State University and Snyder Park Gardens and Arboretum in Springfield, Ohio, each grow the same cultivars to evaluate performance and consumer appeal across two different treatments. Chadwick Arboretum's treatment provides examples of how a cultivar can look with proper handling and maintenance, while Snyder Park Arboretum's methods involve minimal treatment and care. The results are posted on our website at the end of the growing season.

Led by Program Director Pamela Bennett and Horticulture Operations Manager Lisa Metcalf, volunteers do everything from planting the seeds, to providing routine maintenance, evaluating each cultivar, and taking photos and sharing information about each cultivar. It takes over 70 volunteers to handle everything!

Tasks to maintain these cultivars at Chadwick Arboretum involve regular watering, routine fertilization, deadheading, mulching, hand weeding and applying pesticides if necessary.
